

WELL BEING FOUNDATION

Creating Ripples of Sustainable Change

Legal Compliance Policy

WELL BEING FOUNDATION is committed to conducting all its activities in full compliance with applicable laws, regulations, and statutory requirements governing non-governmental organizations (NGOs). The Foundation shall operate with integrity, transparency, accountability, and ethical responsibility in all administrative, financial, and programmatic functions.

The Foundation will maintain all necessary registrations, licenses, approvals, and certifications required under relevant laws and ensure timely renewal and submission of statutory filings, reports, and tax obligations. All financial records, donor information, and operational documents shall be maintained accurately and securely in accordance with legal and regulatory standards.

Employees, trustees, volunteers, consultants, and partners associated with WELL BEING FOUNDATION are required to comply with all organizational policies and applicable legal provisions, including those related to labor laws, anti-corruption practices, safeguarding, financial accountability, and data privacy. Any suspected violation of legal or regulatory obligations must be reported immediately to the management for investigation and corrective action.

The Foundation shall regularly review and update its compliance procedures to align with changes in laws and regulations. Through continuous monitoring and responsible governance, WELL BEING FOUNDATION aims to uphold public trust and ensure lawful, ethical, and effective operations at all times.
